How you can make your Living-Room Attractive

THE above reproduction is of a living-room finished with Sherwin-Williams Flat-tone. Flat-tone is an oil paint made especially for interior decorating. It produces a flat finish which can be washed with soap and water without injury. The color which you choose for the walls and ceiling of a room is the main factor around which the remaining decoration of the room is planned; that will harmonize easily with the woodwork, furniture, rugs, etc. The great advantage of Sherwin-Williams Flat-tone is that the line contains such a large number of harmonious colors, that no matter what color scheme you may plan for your room, you can easily find this color in this line.

Come in and talk over your interior decorating with us and let us show you a color card of Sherwin-Williams Flat-tone Colors.

Dominion Day Sports

The Dominion Day Sports Committee held a meeting on Monday night, and passed appropriations for the different events. The citizens are coming through very generously with their subscriptions, which will enable the committee to put on a first class programme. Special efforts are being made to attract the country schools and good prizes will be awarded. There will be a good procession, in which the owners of autos are asked to join. Arrangements will be made whereby they can travel at about 6 miles an hour. There will be lots of races for the school children and adults. Football will be on a large scale, and the fire work display at night will be a special feature. There will be something doing all the day and up to about 10:30 at night. Dr. Clark has been invited to address the citizens at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, after the procession to the City Square.

Big Tent Meeting

The Interdenominational tent meeting, under the auspices of the Alberta and Saskatchewan Provincial Holiness Association, will be held in a big tent on the City Square, Red Deer, from June 17th to 29th, inclusive. Rev. J. S. Dunn, pastor of Evangelical church, Didsbury, Alta., and president of the Association here mentioned, will also be present June 18th and 19th to help push the work. All are cordially invited to attend this feast of "red wine".

All By-laws Carried

The vote on the four by-laws for needed work in the city passed almost unanimously on Monday last. The largest vote was cast against improvements to the parks, nine ratepayers opposing this work. It is hardly conceivable that a ratepayer can be so blind to the city's interests as to oppose such a by-law. Our parties are our most magnificent asset, and are worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to the people. Calgary today would willingly give a million dollars for Waskasoo Park as conveniently situated to that city as it is to Red Deer, and the day will come when the people will bless the Council that reserved these beautiful woodland stretches for their use. The following is the total vote for and against the by-laws:

Rising paths—55 for, 9 against.
Walks, curbs, etc.—65 for, 1 against.
Waterworks—63 for, 2 against.
Street improvements—59 for, 3 against.

Women's Institute of Alberta

On Saturday afternoon the regular monthly meeting of the Red Deer Branch of this Institute was held in the Ladies' College, the President, Mrs. Lees, in the chair. This meeting had been looked forward to with more than ordinary interest and was very well attended. The minutes having been read by the Secretary, Mrs. Woodworth, the question of uniting the A.W.A. with the Women's Institute was brought forward. Mrs. Galbraith, on behalf of the A.W.A., explained that the aims of this society had been to take an interest in the welfare of the High School girls, many of whom were merely boarding in the city, and the main object of the society was to try and make the lives of these girls somewhat more pleasant by supplying them with opportunities for social enjoyment. Mrs. Galbraith suggested that this work might still be carried on under a committee of the Women's Institute. Owing to a variety of causes, there was a prospect that the A.W.A. might soon cease to exist. After some discussion it was decided that the Women's Institute would take steps to carry on the work of the A.W.A.

Owing to a variety of causes, there was a prospect that the A.W.A. might soon cease to exist. After some discussion it was decided that the Women's Institute would take steps to carry on the work of the A.W.A.

Miss Campbell, of the Ladies' College, then gave an exceedingly interesting paper on "The Cheaper Cuts of Meat," followed by a practical demonstration of the best ways of preparing such joints. The meeting adjourned to the spacious kitchens of the College to see and taste the results of Miss Campbell's cooking. Very few of those present did not get some valuable suggestions in the manipulation of the despoised "Cheap or Cut"—suggestions that should, in some measure, tend to reduce the present much talked of and universally deplored "high cost of living."

Mrs. Lees then gave a demonstration of hospital bed making, and some very helpful suggestions were given as to how these same methods might be applied to home bed making and thus save time and labor for the housekeeper. It was arranged to procure a number of copies of the bulletins on "Meats, Composition and Cooking" supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture, and that these be sold to all members of the Institute who wished to have copies.

The Charity Ball

The Alexandra Club gave a Grand Charity Ball in aid of the hospital on Friday last.

The Parish Hall wore a festive air, and the floor was simply splendid. The guests of the evening were received by Mesdames Cutting, Ham, W. A. D. Lees, W. A. Moore and J. Grant McGreager, who did honor to the occasion by donning their most costly and beautiful gowns.

The music, which was excellent, was supplied by Wolffe's orchestra. Card tables were placed in the gallery for those who did not care to indulge in the more exciting pastime of dancing.

We could not begin to describe all the pretty gowns, everyone looking extremely well.

The supper tables, which were set downstairs, looked very tempting, being laden with meat, fruit salads, olives, jellies, fruit, cake and ice cream.

The members of the Alexandra Club, who had the management of the Ball in hand, are to be congratulated upon the great success, both socially and financially, that the dance proved to be.

Automobile Licenses

Deputy Provincial Secretary, A.M. Conwell, of Edmonton, was in the city Friday with the object of compelling all automobile owners to take out a license. There are 61 cars in Red Deer, and there were some 11 automobiles without a license, and $90 was very soon added to the provincial revenue fund. Each car is compelled to have a number tag in front and behind, and this year the tag is red to easily distinguish it from last year's tag.

Canada Cement

which Canadian farmers use, with their own sand, stone and gravel to make concrete, is the only ingredient you have to buy. We have, by reason of our large output and scientific methods, been able to bring the price of "Canada" Cement so low that it is within the reach of everyone.

An increase in demand results in a greater economy of production, and when conditions have warranted it, we have, from time to time, shared this saving with the consumer by reducing the price of Canada Cement. This demand will continue to increase as fast as farmers learn of concrete's superiority over other materials.

When you buy cement, see that you get "Canada" Cement, by so doing you will assure the complete success of all your concrete work. Send a post card for our book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It is free.

There is a Canada Cement dealer in your neighborhood.

Dear Sisters and Workers:

I do not hesitate to come to you again with the same subject as has filled most of my talks to you the past two years. The saying that there is nothing new under the sun is true, and I have had occasion of late to notice that the new-born babe is just as interesting as it was in our mothers' time. And so while the children's branch is an old subject in the W.C.T.U., it has lost none of its importance and interest, but rather grows as we realize more and more that the child is father of the man, and in saving the children we are saving the nation.

Our Loyal Temperance Legion work is growing in Alberta. Minds are being awakened, eyes are catching the vision, and hearts are answering the call to this most important field of labor. The L.T.L. is a training school for temperance soldiers, and our leaders are giving more time, thought and interest, but rather grows as we realize more and more that the child is father of the man, and in saving the children we are saving the nation.

My motto for the year is "Not one motherless Union in Alberta," and I feel confident that every white ribbon who reads this will do what she can to help me realize this ambition. It is not a selfish goal toward which I am working, for I have "rather check my child" of my own, but it is an all-consuming love for the children of the world and a burning desire to see them kept out of the ruts and miserable habits that have enslaved and ruined, and spoiled for service so many of their parents. Christ loved the children. I am sure that he never pushed one aside but commanded "you and all your house" to be baptized. He never spoke with simply the thought of water baptism in mind. He meant more especially the baptism of the Holy Spirit. He wanted the children to come along with the fathers and mothers in their serving of Him.

I believe, we have many children to win who have not the great blessing of consecrated fathers and mothers to lead and guide them. Many of these boys and girls become our staunchest little workers, and verify the Bible statement very emphatically in that a little child does lead them. I think it would be almost impossible to win a child and teach it to love us and the temperance cause without its influence being left at home. Parents listen to the children's chatter and innocent reasoning and question more than is often admitted, and so from the standpoint of broadening our mother organization and enlisting new workers in our cause the L.T.L. is a factor worth considering.

Sisters, you cannot afford to miss this greatest opportunity you have lying right around your own door step. Do not let another W.C.T.U. meeting go by without earnestly discussing the needs of the little people, and what you can do as individuals, as an organization to make life better and richer for them. Surely you can do more, even than you have ever done in the past. I know I can take on new zeal. God is expecting it of us whom He has honored by calling into His service.

I know you will let me hear from you this year, and soon, regarding conditions with you and concerning supplies and the best methods of interesting and holding the children. If I do miss the Saskatchewan legions, but Mrs. Rodgers is so interested and anxious to do good work as leader of the Saskatchewan forces that I bespeak for her all I would ask for myself.

Alberta W. C. T. U. is offering a prize banner this year to the L.T.L. having the greatest percent. of increase in membership. I hope this will inspire a pleasant rivalry among the legions as to who shall hold the banner for the first time.

GRACE VAN FLEET BOYD, Carleton Place.

4th Annual Visit of Canadian Teachers to the Old Country

Arrangements have been completed for the fourth annual visit of the teachers of Canada to the Old Country. This year the R.M.S. Grampian has been specially chartered for the party, and the first and second class accommodation has been thrown into one, so that the members will have free access to any part of the ship. This is a distinct advantage over other years. The Atlantic line officials have gone to a lot of trouble and made great concessions in placing the entire vessel at the disposal of the party. The return arrangements are not quite completed, but it is possible that the party will return on the Corsican about August 22nd. The party will leave Montreal on July 14th or 15th, and will consist of about three hundred members. A special programme has been laid out with alternative programmes. The western members leave Winnipeg for Montreal by special train on June 30th. On the steamer arriving at Quebec, three hours will be given for seeing this old and very interesting city, after which the steamer will continue on to Glasgow, Scotland. While in Scotland visits will be made to Stirling, Balloch, Edinburgh, Carlisle, Loch Lomond and other places, where the party will be entertained by the Lord Provost, City Councils, Andrew Carnegie and others. After about five days in Scotland the party will proceed to the English Lake district, and then on to Oxford, where they will be entertained by the Victoria League, Stratford-on-Avon, Warwick Castle, Picnic on the Thames, Balliol Hall and other places will be visited from Oxford, including Henley and Bath. The party will leave Bath on a special train for London, where a programme, taking about thirteen days to complete, will be carried out, consisting of visits to all the principal places, Westminster Abbey, House of Parliament, Art Galleries, Museum, Military Camp, and other places of note.

One very interesting item in this part of the programme will be the Canadian day for London school children. Special trains will convey the teachers and the children to Epping Forest, and this will probably be one of the most touching events of their visit to the Old Country. After leaving London, four days will be spent in the Channel Islands, where one particular feature awaits the party, namely, the Battle of Flowers. This is Jersey's great gala day, and the Jersey people are laying themselves out to give the Canadians the time of their lives, and a special stand has been erected whereby they can view this gala with comfort. This Battle of Flowers is something that has to be seen to be appreciated. The Channel Islands climatically are particularly adapted for this class of gala. After leaving the Islands, the party will visit Falmouth, Exeter, Tisbury, Gloucester, Chester and North Wales. Visits will also be made to the continent. This trip to the Old Country is beneficial in many ways, particularly from an educational point of view, and it is growing to be a very big affair, being backed up by the most notable people in the Dominion of Canada, as well as those in the Old Country, and is under the auspices of the government of Canada and the Departments of Education of the whole of the Provinces.

G.T.P. BORROW FROM GOVERNMENT

Borden Government Loans $15,000,000 to Tide Company Over the Financial Stridency.

Ottawa, June 2.—In view of the financial stringency and the difficulty the Grand Trunk Pacific railway company has had in securing money on the London market, with the consequent danger of the shutting down of western construction work and the delay in the completion of the route through to the Pacific, the government has decided to make a loan not exceeding $15,000,000 to the Grand Trunk Pacific, payable in ten years, on July 1, 1923.

It is expected the advances will be made over a period of two years.

The loan is at 4 per cent., to be secured by debenture issue by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, constituting a charge upon the entire western division next year after all existing authorized charges.

The loan is guaranteed absolutely by the government and interest by the Grand Trunk Railway company. Notice of a resolution upon which the bill will be based, was given by Hon. W. F. White, finance minister, on Saturday night, and will appear on the order papers this morning.

An Insect Injurious to Cattle Raising

Cattle raisers in almost all parts of Canada are familiar with the small lumps that appear on the backs of their animals during the winter months and from which white grubs or maggots emerge at a later date. Many theories exist as to the exact life history of the insect, known as the Warble Fly, of which the white grub is the larva. The opinion generally held that the eggs are laid on the backs of the cattle, and when hatched they work beneath the skin, is proved by careful investigation to be incorrect. Dr. Seymour Hadwin, 1st Assistant Pathologist of the Health of Animals Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, who has studied the subject, claims that the eggs are not laid on the back but on the legs of the cattle. This appears to be a pleasant theory, as the newly hatched insects are licked by the animals and taken into the system and ultimately find their way to the backs where they develop beneath the skin. The matter of chief importance to the cattle raiser is, not the exact course taken by the insect within the body of the cattle, but rather the economic effect of the grubs upon the business of cattle raising. To throw light on this phase of the subject Dr. Hadwin has written a bulletin, which is numbered 16 of the Health of Animals Branch, dealing with the economic aspect of warble flies. In this it is shown that enormous losses occur each year through damage to hides caused by these insects. Tanners consulted on the subject claim that during the "grubby" season, extending from January to July, from 25 to 75 per cent of hides are warbled and that about 20 per cent of Canadian hides are more or less damaged. The extent of damage is variously estimated, but by 16 large tanners to be from about 50 cents to $1.00 per hide; the estimate of one Ontario tanner was 10 per cent of hides worth $180,000 per annum. The author observes that the man who undoubtedly loses is the farmer; the tanner does not want warbled hides at any price and several of them testify that they buy hides only during the season when hides are not grubby. He estimates the annual loss to be between 25 and 30 per cent. This bulletin of twenty pages which is the first to have been issued on the subject in Canada, is helpfully illustrated. Copies will be mailed in response to applications made for it to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

BANISHED FROM EUROPE.

Tribune, London, May 31.—At 2.30 yesterday Tribune signed away to the Balkan allies and Albania 60,000 square miles of territory in Europe. She has now left in Europe only a narrow strip of about 5,000 square miles, including Constantinople, the Danubians, the Phosphorus and the Sea of Marmara.

Turkey as a political force is thus banished from Europe. This historical event took place in St. James palace under the presidency of Sir Edward Grey. It was fixed for 12.30 o'clock, but the delegates arrived a quarter of an hour earlier. They came to London in December, but broke off negotiations on January 29 and since that date have not met in the palace. At 1.30 o'clock, exactly an hour after the conference began, the delegates left in a body. They were smoking and chatting and were apparently thoroughly pleased with themselves. They had ended the war with Turkey. On all sides there is manifested deep gratitude to Sir Edward Grey, whose work as chief spokesman and negotiator for the great powers has been chiefly responsible for the settlement.

ALFRED AUSTIN IS DEAD.

London, June 2.—Alfred Austin, British poet laureate since 1896, died today at the age of 77. Alfred Austin, besides being a poet, was a barrister, a critic, a novelist, a war correspondent and a political writer. He published his first poem anonymously at the age of 18, after he had taken his degree at London university. He never practised law. He was a newspaper correspondent for some years, and he followed the operations of the Franco-Prussian war in 1870-71, with the headquarters of the Prussian king.

T. A. GAETZ "Overwhelming" Sale a Hummer

A Surging Mass of Eager Buyers ushered in the Great Opening Day of the BIG Overwhelming Sale. Such a burst of enthusiasm outshone anything in the history of Red Deer. Crowds upon Crowds Answered to the Clarion Call of Slaughtered Prices.

From the Store, the Farm, the Kitchen, the Office, the Home, the Shack; they came in droves. The faces of the people beamed with smiles of good nature and happiness, as they jostled one another in their effort to secure a share of the princely bargains that abound in the store. Dollars walked with a majestic stroll of importance, and hundreds daily walked out loaded down with parcels that gave evidence of many dollars saved.

EVERYBODY ON THE RUN TO GAETZ'S

No feverish effort on the part of competitors can stem the tide of rushing feet to this epoch trading event. Deep price cutting tells the tale.

COMPETITION COMPLETELY NON-PLUSSED

Our competitors are staggered, think we are crazy, selling such swell new goods, at such ridiculous prices and say we are losing money. We can't help it. We are determined to close out every dollar of The Gaetz Co. Ltd., Goods and we can afford to cut deep into the price, as we bought at a rate on the dollar. If we lose we lose. We will have in exchange a host of delighted customers instead and we are satisfied.

STICKS AND APPLE TREES.

The attempt to make a heavy villain of Hon. Robert Rogers is one which does not appear to hurt that gentleman much in the estimation of the Conservative party. In fact, Mr. Rogers' standing in the party is improved by the desperate attempt of the Liberal press to make him appear a very bad man. Conservative members who know him well, know that he can be made to appear a very bad man only by organized slander. The Liberal press know this too, hence the determined and persistent slander campaign.

"Well, it is history repeating itself," said a generous Conservative member. "We used to do the same thing. For several years after 1896 we tried to make a villain out of the late J. Israel Tarte, and always alluded to him as 'the Master of the administration,' with Laurier as his puppet. The fact is, we knew he was a dangerous opponent because of his organizing ability. If Laurier had not dismissed him from the Cabinet, he might still be in power, for Tarte would never have allowed Fielding and Peterson to go over to the United States to arrange a Resiprocity Treaty."

The whole incident recalls Sir John A. Macdonald's saying that the most sticks are found under the best apple trees.

THE SENATE PUNISHES THE FAIRMER

The following terse sentiment, expressed by the Montreal Herald, a strictly independent and loyal paper, is to the point and expresses our views exactly:

It is a thousand pities that the Senate should have chosen to display its partisan strength on such a measure as the Highways Bill. The farmers of the country have for years borne uncomplainingly the heavy burden of taxation for the building of railroads, and now, when it is proposed to come to their relief by building roads that will enable them with economy and ease to reach these railroads they have already paid for, the Senate conjures up the bugaboo that, with the $10,000,000 it is proposed to expend, the farming community would be corrupted.

The sentiment is entirely unworthy of the Senate. If the Senate, as some believe, was only playing politics, it has played the game badly. The defeat of the Highways Bill is in no way likely to embarrass the Government. The refusal of the Senate to endorse the measure will, however, embarrass the farmers of the country, who will be faced with the inescapable alternative of building their own roads, or of bearing the continued heavy indirect taxation which had roads impose. The country needs good roads. The farmers deserve the pitance it is proposed to expend in their interest. There is no question as to the right of the Government to make the expenditure. It looks as if the time had arrived to clear a good road at Ottawa so that progress can be made.

FAIL TO FLOAT NEW ALBERTA LOAN ABROAD.

London, June 7.—The Canadian Associated Press learns that attempts made to float a new Alberta loan have so far been fruitless. There appears to be a deadlock regarding new flotations, which applies all round, particularly in regard to Canadian propositions. There is no feeling of actual alarm among well informed city circles but sometimes there are restless, uneasy symptoms among actual investors.

The bill appropriating ten millions for the advancement of agriculture in the provinces, has been passed, although the Senate Liberals did earnestly yearn to kill it. This bill carries out the promise made by the Conservative leader during the campaign of 1911. It is one of the most important and progressive measures ever enacted for the benefit of the great agricultural industry in Canada. The appropriation being large enough to ensure the permanency which is essential to the success of the movement.

The Toronto Press on Senate's Action Over the Naval Bill

Toronto, Ont., June 8.—The Toronto Telegram says:

"True Liberals must always reject the theory that legislators who derive their powers from appointment or from inheritance can clothe their action with the validity that attaches to the action of legislators who derive their powers from the vote of the people."

No viscous lingering in the house of commons on the death of a titled father promoted him to the British house of lords was ever so insolent in his proclamation of Tory doctrine than Dr. Michael Clark, of Red Deer, in his defence of senate interference with the highways bill.

"The British house of lords at its worst is a nobler assembly than the Canadian senate at its best. The British house of lords is in part and largely made up of men who would be elected members of parliament by the people who know them best. If they were not members of the house of lords, The Canadian senate is almost wholly made up of appointees who are in the senate because the people would not give them a house room in any assembly which the people control."

"There can be no truce to the warfare between the British freedom loving people of Canada and Laurier, the Bourbon, who lights the liberties of this country with the help of his own exponent of Liberal principles at the senate of Canada."

Canada's Twelfth Parliament Prorogued

Ottawa, June 6.—The second session of Canada's twelfth parliament, which in many ways was the most remarkable since confederation, came to a dramatic conclusion today. Prorogation day is usually quiet, the chief interest being in the military display which marks the closing ceremonies. Today the developments and discussions within the walls of parliament were so interesting that the fass and feathers were practically forgotten by those closely associated with the proceedings. Although the populace turned out in considerable numbers to see Deputy Governor Fitzpatrick arrive with the usual escort, they were scattered shortly after by a sharp downpour of rain.

The most interesting developments occurred at the morning sitting when there was a sharp final debate on the naval question and a pronouncement by Premier Borden as to the future action of the government in view of the fact that the naval bill had been killed by the senate. Mr. Borden announced that, assuming that the cable dispatches stating Mr. Churchill's proposals to build three additional ships, are correct, parliament would again be asked to vote the thirty-five millions, and the ships would be purchased for the use of his majesty. Mr. Borden was severe in his comments on the action of the senate.

After discussing the matter some exhaustively, the Conservatives of Bow Valley, at a meeting held Saturday, decided not to place a candidate in the field in opposition to Hon. C. R. Mitchell, minister of public works. The general opinion was that it would not be in the best interests of the province to have an election.

When informed of the final decision

"Beggar Prince" Opera at the Lyric

The Beggar Prince comic opera, played at the Lyric Theatre on Friday night last, gave general satisfaction to those present. There was a crowded house, the company coming with a good reputation, which they upheld. There was a fair amount of song throughout the play, and the acting of the different artists was very good, also the dancing of the peasant girls. H. C. Mosley, as Isorog, was about as good as anything we have seen in Red Deer, and he was very close by Ray Southard in the title roll of the Beggar Prince. The two together succeeded in keeping the audience in a state of laughter from beginning to end. The singing of L. B. Evans as Pippo, and Stanley Dale as Fredrick, was admirable. The play, and the acting of the different artists was very good, also the dancing of the peasant girls.

MAIL AND EMPIRE.

The Mail and Empire says: Instead of contributing to Canada's aiding Britain in the work of empire defence, the opponents of the Borden bill would have Britain continue to bear the whole increasing burden of that work. They do not hesitate indeed to criticize her arrangements for Canada's naval protection. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie-King has spoken of Britain's withdrawal of warships from our seas and some of the blockers referred to the concentration as it left Canada uncovered. Britain, in providing our naval defence, and as the Laurier politicians refuse even emergency aid to them in that labor, will they not next ask that Britain divide up her navy and bestow upon this country as much as would be the equivalent to the defence now provided to Canada. The opponents of the measure to send Britain three battleships, right almost consistently demand that she render on Canada the three battleships she is to place in the Imperial squadron in view of this country was to place there.

"But, as Mr. Borden stated in the house, yesterday, Canada will do her part in this emergency and the battleships she was to send will be sent. The sum total of this mischief done by the senators' intervention will be, it is hoped, no more than the general raising of Britain's naval construction."

How the British Died at Delhi

Early of a May morning in the year 1857, there rode into Delhi, capital of northern India, the mutinous remnants of two armies of British soldiers. These men had slain their British officers in Meerut, thirty-six miles away, fired houses, murdered women and children; then riding hard they had come into Delhi, swarming into the palace of Bahadur Shah, deposed mogul, who was living in that make-believe state England saw fit to tolerate, and proclaimed him Emperor of India.

Native troops in Delhi long smouldering in discontent and wrath, had joined the Meerut raiders; in the European quarter houses were smoking, blood was spilt. This was the word which came to Lieut. George Willoughby, the young English officer who was in command of the ammunition magazine of her British Majesty in Delhi.

THE BEGINNING OF THE REBELLION.
The great Sepoy rebellion, which had been preparing for months, had broken out when least expected, late of a Sunday afternoon in Meerut; and the British, paralyzed with surprise, had so far made small effort to resist. It was at Delhi that they first showed their mettle.

Eight other Britons were with Willoughby in the magazine, and there were also a dozen or more Lascar workmen, upon whom small dependence could be placed. As soon as word came to Willoughby that the mutineers were in possession of the palace he set to work to fortify the arsenal. The gates were closed and barricaded, and light guns shared with double grapeshot, were set up where they could sweep the street down which the mob must come.

The native workmen were already showing signs of uneasiness. With the errand reluctance they accepted weapons and they heeded orders and pretended not to understand.

Then Willoughby called Scully, one of his subordinates, and ordered him to lay a train to the powder magazine. Rather than let the arsenal fall into the hands of the future Seers, Willoughby proposed to blow it and himself to pieces.

Hardly had the preparations been completed when the brown troops swept down the street. A leader demanded the surrender of the place in the name of the King of Delhi. No answer was returned. Then scaling ladders were set up against the building, and like a bunch of rats escaping from a ship the Lascar workmen swarmed to the housetop and joined the mob outside.

MOWED DOWN BY GUNS.
Then the firing began. The British guns mowed down Hindus in the street, but there were plenty more to take their places. And inside there were only nine Englishmen. Ladders were leaned against the walls time and again, time and again they were thrown down.

Willoughby and his companions fought on, their faces black with smoke, through the hot afternoon, reloading their guns—tough work, that, for it was before the days of breech-loading pieces. Had there been thirty Englishmen there instead of nine it is possible they might have held out, but as it was, there were not even men enough to fetch ammunition when that near at hand was exhausted.

Outside in the street the mob was growing. The attempts to reach the walls came faster and faster, for the natives were working themselves up into fanatic fury at the stout and unexpected resistance of the arsenal's defenders. They needed that arsenal. It meant guns and ammunition for everyone who chose to fight.

Two of the Britons had fallen at their guns. The ammunition at hand was gone. No attempt was to be made by the little Delhi garrison to rescue them, apparently. And finally Willoughby gave the order to fire the magazine. No one of the nine had any idea but that it meant certain death for all. Strangely enough, four of the nine escaped.

FOUR RACED TO SAFETY.

There was a splitting crash, a heaving out and down of heavy walls, a street that echoed with the yells of wounded men, and in the welter of smoke and dust the struggling babel, Willoughby and three comrades, running fast, got to the Kashmir Gate and out of Delhi. The others—Scully, who fired the train, the wounded two who fell beside their guns, and two men more, one a lieutenant, were buried under the shattered walls of the great magazine. Hundreds of rebel natives perished, too. The revolt had met with its first setback, and the Sepoys realized something of the "last ditch" spirit with which Englishmen could die.

They still show tourists in Delhi the scars of the Sepoy outbreak, the place where the magazine stood. A contract has been let by Mr. George V., in robes of state, to erect in the palace of Bahadur Shah only last year, and the King's Gate, court has been carved stone elephants, was opened then for the first time since the King of Delhi, ruler of the Sepoys, passed through it in 1857.

Sylvan Lake

The wharf is completed and looks splendid. Building operations are being energetically carried out, and Mr. Ruscak's two buildings are nearing completion.

Messrs. Dickson and Dodd are busy putting up their cottages on the shore. The Sylvan Lake Trading Co. put their new motor boat into commission on Friday.

There are four large, new power boats to be on the lake before long. The C.P.R. have a large outfit at work getting ready for the steel.

The Canadian Northern are now making good running from Stettler to Rocky Mountain House and the track is being raised and lined up.

Remember the regatta on the 11th and 12th of July, and spread the news.

The School Board Asks The City For $27,605.

GROWTH ABOUT THIRTY PER CENT. OVER LAST YEAR

The Public School Board met at the School on Wednesday evening in special session, but owing to want of light, had to finish up their meeting at the City Office. The chief business was the consideration of the teaching staff for 1913-14 and the finances. There were present Mr. Simpson, chairman; Mr. Munro, Secretary; Mr. Payne, Mr. Carswell, Mr. Gaetz, and Principal McKenzie.

TEACHERS CHANGING. Miss Millar and Miss Sproule are retiring at the end of this term, and another teacher is required in the High School. Miss Goudie will be offered Miss Millar's place at $1,100 a year, and Miss Ripley, now at Carstairs, will be the fourth High School teacher. Miss Cole, Miss Land and Miss Church, who have been teaching for the past two years, will remain for the coming school year. Miss Elliott will take Miss Sproule's room, Miss Patterson will come over from North Red Deer, and probably take Miss Goudie's or Miss Elliott's room. The Board will deal with the applications for the other two vacancies at the regular meeting next week.

FINANCES. With respect to finances, the Bank of Montreal had notified the School Secretary-Treasurer that it would not make any further advances to the Board, until the City deposited daily to the credit of the Board the money received by the City from 1913 school taxes. The Board had communicated with the City Commissioners, who had agreed to turn over to the Board weekly the school taxes as they were collected at the City office. This arrangement would be satisfactory to the Board, but the local manager was awaiting word from Winnipeg.

THE ESTIMATES FOR 1913. The Board considered for nearly two hours the estimates for the year, which will show an increase of 30 per cent., somewhat in proportion to the increased attendance. Teachers' salaries showed an increase of nearly $2,000, which includes Madame Quigley's salary as music teacher for the year, and the salaries of three, probably four, additional teachers for part of the year, as well as the regulation increase of $50 a year to the teachers of over one year's service, and $100 to the Principal making his salary $2,000. Principal McKenzie, to the great regret of the Board, is none too certain of remaining, owing to the health of Mrs. McKenzie.

Buildings and grounds included fire escape and sidewalk for the Central school, sidewalk and platform for the South ward school, and other improvements. Supplies over $35 a year maintenance for each room, and $300 for opening up a new room, three probably four rooms being opened up this year.

This is the year when the 3 year fire insurance premiums come due on the main building. There is an increase of $700 in depreciable interest and payments owing to the new schools.

The following figures were finally adopted:

ESTIMATES FOR 1913.
Teachers' salaries	$14,100
Officials' salaries	620
Janitors' salaries	1,280
Fuel	1,800
Light and water	1,500
Supplies	1,500
Interest	1,000
Grounds and buildings	1,800
Library	250
Insurance	6,010
Debitments	175
Rent	300
Taxes and sewer frontage	450
Other expenditures	500
	$31,705

Last year's figures were $23,500. The estimated Government grant was $1,700, leaving $27,605 to be raised by taxation.

The Board adopted at 11.

Senate's Action Put Canada in Bad Light

ANNOUNCEMENT THAT MOTHER COUNTRY WILL BUILD THREE ADDITIONAL SHIPS LOGICAL SEQUENCE

Ottawa, June 6.—The announcement by the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, of provision for laying down three additional dreadnoughts, is regarded here as a logical sequence of the rejection by the Liberal majority in the senate, of the government's naval bill. Consequently, it has occasioned no surprise in Ottawa.

When the prime minister in December last introduced the naval bill, emphasis was laid on the fact that additional ships were urgently needed. Following the advice of the admiralty, as set forth in the memorandum, the government proceeded to meet the need as stated in the memorandum.

CANADA COMES OUT BADLY. Long months of obstinate obstruction culminated in the rejection of the measure, and now Canada, blocked by a partisan majority, is forced to do, the British government is now forced to do. Premier Borden Thursday night had no comment to make, but it is known that the latest development in the situation occasioned no surprise. Rather, what happened was fully anticipated. There is a pretty general expression of feeling at Ottawa that Canada has come out badly and that a situation is now existing upon this country as an integral part of the Empire. The government's action fully justifies the stand taken by the British government and backed up enthusiastically by its supporters in the house and in the senate, as well as by the patriotic sentiment of the country.

Liberals are silent in regard to the matter, and are much more ready to discuss other matters than that which Thursday's developments have brought forth. They are working hard for prologation before anything worse happens to them.

IMBIBERS WILL NOT BE TREATED WITH LENIENCY BY C.P.R.

If They Are Discharged They Will Not Be Re-engaged Under Any Condition.

Superintendent A. Price stated to The News-Telegram on Thursday morning that the C.P.R. had made a very important decision in regard to one of the rules governing railroad employees, and in the future the man who is discharged for drinking or being drunk, cannot re-engage with the company in any capacity on the entire system. Previous to now, if a man lost his position through drinking, there was a possibility of him being taken on again at some other place in another capacity, if he showed that he had stopped the habit. Now train employees are "banned" for good if they are ever found in places where liquor is sold.

"We have adopted the rule," said Mr. Price, "that if a man is discharged for violating rule G he will not again be permitted to enter the service of any portion of the system. Rule G reads as follows: 'INTOXICANTS PROHIBITED. The use of intoxicants by employees while on duty is prohibited. Their use or the frequenting of places where they are sold is sufficient cause for dismissal.'"

"This simply means that the road can put no reliance in a man if he has ever become a drinker. It has been proven that once a man drinks hard enough to be discharged, he seldom reforms."

The grain here is looking good, but a few showers would be appreciated.

Mr. Currie, the rector of Pine Lake Church, will hold service in the school-house on Sunday evening, June 8th next.

Jimmy Freeman deserves the thanks of the whole community, as he has been filling up the mudholes on the road to Penhold, which were well nigh impassable.

Edwell Items

These days, and Edwell is evidently living up to its reputation as a dairymaking district. We also notice that sleep raising is on the increase here, several of the lads having gone into the business.

The grain here is looking good, but a few showers would be appreciated.

Snell Shield and District League Competition

Red Deer United and Innisfail F. C. met in the above competition on Tuesday night last week. The best crowd of the season turned out to witness the game. It was felt from the first that the Red Deer team would win, as Innisfail are experiencing a difficulty in getting eleven together, and the local boys had defeated them in a previous match by 6 to 0. The kick-off was late, owing to the Innisfail team not being on the ground. The game was one-sided from the first, some of the Innisfail players not appearing to know anything of the game, and who had apparently turned out just for the sake of keeping good faith with their opponents. Red Deer scored three goals in the first half and five in the second, winning by eight goals to none. The United team played well to a man, as far as individual play went, but it would have been much better if they had, in the second half in particular, have got down to some real individual work and less of the individual play. Combination is what is needed, in the front line in particular, and it is the want of it that has led the United from making a good showing in the past against class teams. It is not always for the good of the game that one team should take too much advantage of another organization. One could not help but admire the efforts of some of the Innisfail players, and they certainly all took their liking in a very pleasant manner and showed themselves good sports; and it is to be hoped that they will get a stronger team for their future matches. W. H. Hadley refereed the game.

Mr. Hardenberg Returns

The Edmonton Journal says: A resident of Alberta, Mr. W. E. Hardenberg, of Red Deer, has been in the center of a great deal of investigation in London into the atrocities on the Peruvian rubber plantations. He was primarily responsible, through knowledge, for the obtained while carrying on his work as an engineer, in making the conditions there known to the world. He was subjected to a situation test at the embassy but, judge from the following in London Truth, seems to have come out of it with flying colors.

Mr. Hardenberg, says Truth, "is one of those gentlemen who impress you at sight as being absolutely truthful and honest. Personally, I have never met a man whose word I would take with more readiness, and this opinion is fortified by the straightforwardness of his conduct throughout the whole of this business, down to the moment when he returned to Canada from some remote corner of Alberta, at the risk of losing his employment, in order to meet the charge which had been made against him in London. It is a pleasure to be able to say this, first, because a very great risk and responsibility was taken when the Putumayo atrocities were denounced in Truth on the strength of the information which Mr. Hardenberg brought to England; secondly, because this gentleman has rendered in a most disinterested manner, and great service to humanity, for which he deserves to be held in honor by every right-thinking man. His appearance last week brought the proceedings of the Putumayo Committee to a dramatic conclusion, and though we shall have to wait for the report of the Committee, no one can doubt that, when it appears, it will vindicate emphatically Mr. Hardenberg's share in the exposure of the atrocities."

Sells-Floto Circus on July 17

On July 17th the great Sells-Floto Circus is held to appear in this city for its fourteenth annual engagement. This year we are told that the circus is greatly enlarged in many respects, including many new features, some of which have never before been associated with the entertainment of the Big Top.

Among these might be mentioned the celebrated Scotch Kilt Band from Toronto, Canada; Devlin's Company of Zouaves; a Troop of Trained Lions and Tigers under the direction of Capt. David Heward; Jumping Horses; Forty Clowns; the Celebrated Royal Light Horse Brigade; the Stiekney Family; the Hobsons; Prof. Park Prentiss' Famous Covent Garden of Sixty-Three Puppies; Zora and her Elephants; and a great big three-ring circus because the Sells-Floto people have enlarged their tent at three rings for this season, and all for the popular price of 25 cents.

OUT UNDER THE STARS

After He Had Told Helen Whole Truth.

By S. E. KISER.

For three hours Helen Whaley had been waiting at Northport Junction. Luckily the evening was pleasant, so that she was not compelled to sit in the stuffy, dingy waiting room. There was just one pretty thing about Northport Junction, and that was Helen. If the train for which she was waiting ever came and stopped again, Northport Junction would resume its habit of being about as unlovely a spot as one might find within the temperate zone.

While Helen remained the place would possess one attraction that would have lent distinction to a far more important and a far more splendid center of activity than the Junction was ever likely to become.

The operator in the bay window that jutted out into the point of land between the branching tracks evidently had an eye for beauty as well as an ear for Morse. As Helen walked up and down the platform he watched her and became thoughtful. He wondered why it was that nature bestowed her gifts so lavishly upon some girls and treated others so shabbily. The beauty that Helen possessed might have made a dozen plain girls fair if it had been distributed among them.

Such was the operator's reasoning. The operator at Northport Junction was a philosopher.

But Helen was not thinking of philosophy, and if she had noticed that the operator was eagerly watching her the fact neither added to her pleasure nor caused her annoyance. For some reason she was thinking of Tom Harlow. Perhaps it was because of the loneliness of her surroundings. It was nearly a year since she had refused to listen when Tom had said that he could "explain everything in good time," and for months she had thought that she was never going to have any interest in him again.

Thinking of Tom naturally caused her to think of Mrs. Danforth, the pretty, young grass-widow who had come between them. There was something mysterious about Mrs. Danforth. People who talked about her, but nobody seemed to know just why. She had come to Springfield a stranger and she had been careful to leave her past behind her. It had not taken her long to find friends, and she was quickly admitted to the best social circles. With plenty of money, she lived at the most fashionable hotel, she entertained lavishly, and her clothes were the talk of the town. Then, one day, she disappeared, and on the following morning Tom Harlow told Helen that it had become necessary for him to go to Chicago.

A week later he returned, but a substantial citizen of Springfield had returned before him. The substantial citizen had seen Tom and Mrs. Danforth together in Chicago. Of course Tom had assured Helen that it was all right, but he had not explained. He had merely promised to do so "in good time." And Helen had naturally decided that the "good time" could never come. So Tom went away.

She thought over all this as she impatiently waited at Northport Junction. A dozen times she tried to fix her thoughts on other things, but at ways they turned back to the old subject. She became angry with herself, at last, and more for the purpose of trying to forget Tom Harlow than with the hope of obtaining information she went into the station and asked the operator if it was likely that the train for Medford would arrive on time.

"She's just reported fifty minutes late," the operator informed her. "There's a washout up the road."

Helen turned away with a feeling of hopelessness and went outside again. If Northport had looked dismal to her before, it now seemed desolate. While she was trying to count the appalling number of minutes that she would have to wait, she heard the whistle of an engine away up the curve around the hill on the main line.

When the long train stopped at the Junction Helen saw a man step down from one of the Pullman cars away at the rear. She paid no attention to him, supposing he was a passenger.

who had merely stepped off to get a breath of fresh air, but after the train had gone on she noticed that the man was walking slowly down the center path beside the track toward the station. For a moment she gazed at him, and then hurried inside. It was Tom Harlow, carrying a suitcase.

Selecting the darkest corner in the station, Helen sat down, turned her back toward the door, and waited, hoping that no one would come in and disturb her. She was not long in finding something that she could not have explained. Her corner was so dark, and she remained so silent that Tom passed without noticing her.

"When does the train leave for Medford?" he asked at the ticket window.

"Just pretty hard to tell," the operator replied. "She's reported fifty minutes late, but there's a washout up the road, and she may be held up all night."

"That's encouraging," Tom remarked. "What I've seen of this place doesn't make me yearn to spend the night here. Where's the town?"

"This is it."

"Isn't there a hotel of any kind?"

"No, nothing in that line except the pigsty here. A mile down the track, where the night operator and I board."

"I suppose there's no hack?"

"If you can live over head or not."

"What time do you light up here?"

"They ought to let you use plenty of oil in such a lonesome place as this. It's getting pretty dark here."

"Just a minute. Here's my call."

The operator turned to his instruments and Tom Harlow waited at the ticket window hoping there might be encouraging news concerning the train for Medford; but he was doomed to be disappointed.

"I guess you may as well make up your mind to hang around here all night," said the operator after the instrument had ceased clicking (he spoke rather loudly for Helen's benefit); "they say the track is washed out in half a dozen places. There's been a cloud-burst."

While Tom drummed with his fingers upon the ledge of the ticket window the operator lighted the lamp in his office and then proceeded to illuminate the waiting room, which served for both men and women.

For a moment after the light had been turned on Tom Harlow looked silent. At Helen, who sat with her back toward him, her dark head and her face hidden in her hands. The operator turned to his instruments, which were clicking frantically.

"Helen," Tom said very tenderly after he had paused beside her.

She looked up at him, and he saw that there were tears in her eyes. He reached for one of her hands, but she drew away from him and shrank a little farther into her corner.

"Helen," he said again, "I've come to explain to you. I supposed you were already at Medford. I was going there to tell you."

She stood up, and when he again attempted to take her hand in his she did not object.

"Let's go outside," he suggested, "outside, under the stars, where I can tell you everything—where nothing will be between us and heaven."

The operator was busy, and did not notice that the waiting room was empty.

"You see, Helen, it was necessary for Mrs. Danforth to go to somebody into her confidence," Tom said. "For some reason she selected me. Her former husband, who was a scoundrel, had informed the secret service agents that she had been smuggling jewelry. It was merely a case of blackmail. She had refused to support him and he tried to get her by his own side. She needed somebody to help her establish an alibi, and at the same time she didn't want the story of her troubles to get out. So she drafted me into her service, and I couldn't very well beg off. She was a woman in distress, that was all."

"But why didn't you tell me before?" Helen asked.

"She had asked me not to tell anybody until she gave me permission to do so."

"Then she has given you permission—and you have seen her again?"

"No, I have neither seen her nor heard from her. The man has made a confession, and the whole story is in the papers."

She walked away from him, crossed the platform as usual for a moment, looking at the silent hills that lay deep in the gathering shadows of the night. At length she turned, came half way back to him, and then stopped. He approached her, held out his arms, and asked:

"Don't you believe I have told you the truth, Helen—that I have told you all there is to tell?"

She did not speak, but put her arms about his neck and laid her neck against his breast, while his arms encircled about her. Thus for a long time they stood beneath the stars.

When they returned to the waiting room the operator informed them that the train for Medford would arrive in ten minutes.

A Real Dairy Cattle Industry in the West

(The Homestead)

At Red Deer last week some dairy history was made that puts this section of the Dominion indisputably in the running as a dairy cattle breeding ground. At Messrs. Trimble's disposal and some fifty head of purebred Ayrshire cattle, mostly of their own breeding, were sold at an average of close to $200, several $195 calves being included in this average. Taking into consideration the facts that at this time of the year such a sale in this country will draw few farmers outside of the neighborhood because of farm work, the sale was a snappy success.

The Alberta Ayrshire men rallied to the standards of the hardy Scotch milkers and refused to allow the bidding to lag at any time. Probably the loyalty of the Ayrshire men at this sale is as auspicious a thing as we have seen in the breeding circles of the west. The mere fact that breeders are getting together to boost the interests of the breed rather than hanging away for more selfish gains is a thing worth more than the mere selling of this fine herd of cattle. True, the sale was successful enough, too, a record being hung up in the sale of that great cow, Woodside Lady's 10, that leaves other breeders something to aim at in future operations. The fact that coast breeders from Vancouver, who by the best only, came to this Red Deer sale and carried off some of the choicest show animals for their own herds gives an idea of the renown of Alberta bred live stock.

Alberta Jerseys, Holsteins, and Ayrshires have all been getting some wide-spread publicity. They have been getting this because of what they have been doing at the fair as well as in the show ring, and the two sales held at Red Deer, as well as the one at Calgary, the past year, have done much to put the West on a solid dairy footing. Most of these herds have been distributed at home, where they were well known, but outside buyers are learning more and more of what we have and the kind of stock we are breeding, and are beginning to come here for it. Naturally our dairy industry is at yet in its infancy; but it is a healthy infant that is already making itself heard by the neighbors.

While Tom drummed with his fingers upon the ledge of the ticket window the operator lighted the lamp in his office and then proceeded to illuminate the waiting room, which served for both men and women.

For a moment after the light had been turned on Tom Harlow looked silent. At Helen, who sat with her back toward him, her dark head and her face hidden in her hands. The operator turned to his instruments, which were clicking frantically.

DE LAVAL Cream Separators ARE EASIEST TO WASH

The construction of the De Laval bowl is such that it can be completely taken apart for washing. The discs, bowl parts and innards have no tubes, crevices, holes or corrugated surfaces such as are found in other machines and which are very hard to clean.

The De Laval discs are washed as a single piece and the whole machine can be thoroughly

CLEANED IN FIVE MINUTES

There is no part of the De Laval bowl which cannot be easily reached and seen, so that the operator can always tell whether or not every part has been properly cleaned.

The ease with which the De Laval can be thoroughly washed and kept in a sanitary condition is one reason why creameriers prefer De Laval cream separators, and it is likewise one of the reasons why butter made from De Laval cream has scored highest at the National Dairy Show for over 20 years.

Sporting Notes

In a cricket match replete with brilliant batting, bowling and fielding, the Red Deer Cricket Club won the annual match with the base-batters, captained by Jas. Mann, by the score of 54 to 31. The cricketers went to bat first, and were soon put hors de combat before the magnificent bowling of one Sandy Gibson, E. Buckingham being the only batter who could handle the bowling at all, getting 22 runs by free hitting.

When the base-batters went to bat, their rooters' chorus played havoc with the bowling of E. Johns, and Messrs. Lindsay and Minkler put together a good score before being scattered. Hostmaster Wallace also batted finely, his strokes being simply superb. It was not his fault that his score was not larger. Among others who shone conspicuously in the field were Ernie Honnick and Stan, Cunningham. The losers immediately challenged the winners to a game of baseball, which will be played off at a later date.

CITY V. CALLIES.

The City and Callies teams met in their league fixture on Monday night last on the school grounds. The game was late starting, owing to some of the players not turning out. The City team played with only nine men for nearly half of the game, another player turning up just at half time. It was not a very interesting game, and ended in a win for the Callies by 1 to 0. The City team played hard enough, but were too much handicapped to make a showing. The defence of Buckingham, Perry and Roberts was very good. The Callies did nearly all the pressing, but had left their shooting boots at home. The only goal of the match was from a shot that was travelling direct to the goalkeeper, when the City back got his head to the ball and diverted its course through the posts out of the reach of the goalkeeper; it was a bit of hard luck for the City. A. R. Gibson refereed the game.
